The Great Educational Enterprise of The Tribune Has Been a Success in the Fact That Hundreds of Homes Have Been Made Brighter and Hap-

The following words of commendation from well-known Scranton people apply to the meritorious character of the great Britannica as a library and general reference encyclopdia together with the advantages which the copy offered through THE TRIBUNE possesses, in its new maps and supplemental matter, over the original. Besides the low price and phenominally easy terms which have been arranged to suit the convenience of all. No one need be without it. As think these so think all convenience of all. No one need be without it. As think those so think all the world.

On comparison of The Thievae edition of the Encyclopedia Britannica with Serbaer's, for which I had $125, I find that they are the same throughout, playes and supplemented matter written up to date and later maps, making it, with those additions in history, biography science are, more described as a work of reference than the expensive edition. No one will question the superiority at the Entannica over all encyclopedias. The subscience and easy terms, should place It in every home.

Attorney and Counseller.

The Think was selling of the Encyclopedia Britannica and up to date. By the addition of Indexes the Britannica for the Encyclopedia Britannica such its reduced that the expensive edition. No one will question the superiority at the Britannica over all encyclopedias. The subscience and easy terms, should place It in every home.

The Think was selling of the Encyclopedia Britannica and up to date. By the addition of Indexes the Britannica is the most convenient of eacyclopedia.

THE THIRD NE'S edition of the Encyclopedia Britannica; upon examination, dias proves to be more useful than the ovigo P. rat The supplemental part containing the most recens investigations in science, biographies of living men, the latest or piorations in Africa ore, is, in my judg-ment, a most valuable edition. $1.98 per volume, compared to $1.00, is certainly a restrate east.

I commend the work to all who are in the Edinburg edition of the Encochapedia Britannica offered by The Tunbuse in twenty-five volumes, and find in their bughly reliable being a control of Encochapedia. oughly reliable, being a copy of the origi-nal with American articles and supple-mental mafter written to date and later maps, besides being in volumes more con-rement to handle.

I have examined with considerable care the copy of V.L.I of the Encyclopedia Britannian of the sitton offered by The Tangevic and campared it with the same volume of the Scribner edition which I have them property and find it, so far as I have in my library, and find it, so far as it can see, (lention) with the latter, except that it has more and after maps and a supplement bound with it that brings the creatment of the subjects down to a later late than the original. It is a marvel to per that I can be offered at the extremely ow price named.

The Scribner edition of the Encyclopedia Britannica has been in my library some years. I have found it accurate and rehable and fully illustrated.

The edition offered by THE TRHUNZ IS not abridged; but, in matter of fact, the same work on good paper and substan-tially bound, besides having the additions and revisions. American articles and maps up to date. The additions are in the back of each volume and give the latest data on statistics, together with nistory, science and biography of living men, thus rendering the work more desirable and practical case book of reference than the original. That this work can be sold for $1.95 per volume seems almost incredible, as I paid & per volume, or $125 for mine bound in cloth.

This is the age of books. Learning is so broad and books are so numerous that it broad and books are so numerous that it is impossible for any one to procure separate volumes upon all the subjects which at present engage human thought. In place of this, a good Euryclopedia is an attempt to abridge, or epinomize, and classify all knowledge to bring it within the limit of our comprehension. After a somewhat careful study of three or four of the stringing Encyclopedias. I affirm without principal Encyclopedias, I affirm without besitancy that the Britannica has no superior. Referring to the Eccylopedia Britan-nica offered by The Triation, I consider it an excellent work. I have the Edinburgh edition, which cost me $3.00 per volume, This reprint at $1.08 per volume is another instance of American ingenuity. REV. P. F. ZIELKHANN.

It seems to me to go without saying that THE TRIBUNE is proving itself a pub-lic benefactor in placing before the public such a marvel of reliable information to date, upon the great subjects of thought, sais presented in the Encyclopedia Britannics, with American revisions and addi-tions, and known as THE Tamour edition. It is simply a matter of wonder that such a work, preferable to the more costly edi-tion, in one or more important respects. can be offered at less than $2 a volume, and every lover of books ought to appreciate the marvels of the day in book making. N. F. STARL, Pastor Green Ridge Presbyterian Church.

The copy of the reprint of the ninth and last edition of the Encyclopedia Britannica offered by The TRIBUNE at the price and easy terms of payment should find a place in every home.

In no way can that amount of money be expended so judiciously on books.
The "American Additions" and latest maps with its good paper and binding renders it preferable to the expensive $125 edition.

Physician and Surgeon.

Progress in book-making for the multi-tude is getting to be almost as wonderful as the improvements in transportation. We old fellows had to go through the humilation of borrowing and plodding through hundreds of volumes to gather the knowledge which a few hours, examination of The Tribune's edition of the Encyclopedia Britannica, with its supplements up to date, will give to any person of industry. Then it is so cheap and con-venient. It is like the 5 cent fare that electricity has written for the people, with transfers to just the place you want to go. Men and women who read and desire that their chil ren should, ought to be happy to find this electric highway to solid earning ranning by their doors.
